MODIFIED WEST PENN RATES ARE PUT INTO EFFECT

Once More Conductors Are Freed From Nuisance of Making Penny Change.

MEETING ON FEBRUARY 4

At That Time Committees Handling Fight Against Increase Will Determine What is to be Done With Protest Now on File at Harrisburg.

The new West Penn rates and zone system went into effect at midnight last night. The new tariffs mean the return to the nickel fare but with a larger number of fare zones on each division. The protest committees, which are fighting the increase, will meet in Uniontown on Tuesday, February 4, to decide what further action shall be taken against the railways company.

The rates were those on the modified schedule announced by the company on Saturday. The modified scale shows considerable decrease from the tariffs first announced by the company, but the men back of the opposition to the increase say the modified rates will also be fought out before the Public Service Commission.

Mayor John Duggan, head of the executive committee of protest, was in Uniontown yesterday consulting Attorney E. C. Higbee, who is conducting the legal end of the fight. Both Mr. Higbee and Mayor Duggan are for protesting against any increase in trolley fares, and believe the application for a hearing on the rate question, which has already been filed with the Public Service Commission, should stand. It is to get the opinion of men from other parts of Fayette and Westmoreland counties that the meeting next Tuesday night is being held.

There was a somewhat heavier travel on Uniontown and Dawson trains on the Baltimore & Ohio and Pennsylvania railroads this morning, the travelers saying they preferred to take the steam cars than ride the trolley under the new rates.

ADDRESSES FACTORY MEN

W. R. Rasmussen Speaks at C. M. & M. S. Plant.

The senior class of the Connellsville high school also attended the lecture. The talk was on safety.

Work at the plant was suspended in order to allow the secretary to talk, arrangements having been made by J. S. Darr, state factory inspector in this district. Secretary Rasmussen had intended coming to the city this morning but was delayed in Pittsburg.

DUNBAR TOWNSHIP STUDENTS BEAT TROLLEY COMPANY BY HIKING; WON'T PAY FARE

Fully Half of Those Attending High School at Leisenring Walk.

TEACHERS IN MOVEMENT

Approximately half of the students of the Dunbar township high school who ride to and from school at Leisenring on the West Penn trolley line voiced their disapproval of the increase in rates of fare by walking to school this morning. Teachers also joined in the protest. One teacher hiked all the way from Dawson. Several students walked from Dunbar. Teachers from Connellsville also walked.

The real expression came, however, from about 80 students from "down the Dawson way" who rode to the end of the fare limit at Eagle siding and then left the car in a body and walked the remainder of the distance, about three-quarters of a mile. It was said this afternoon they intended to pursue the same course each day whenever the weather will permit.

The students found cause for considerable merriment in the hike to the school, this applying to the large body who tripped over the hill from Eagle siding.

There are three fare zones between Connellsville and Dickerson Run. The first extends to Second street, Trotter, the second to Eagle, the third to the terminal at Dickerson Run. This puts Dickerson Run in the center of a zone.

Baltimore & Ohio trains between Connellsville and Dawson were patronized more than usually well this morning.

LARGE MONDAY NIGHT AUDIENCE OUT FOR THE UNION REVIVAL

Evangelist Grant Pollock Preaches on "Standing Grace;" Special Music.

The Cairns Evangelistic meeting last night was largely attended. For a Monday night audience it was fine. The sermon was preached by Rev. Grant Pollock and the subject was "Standing Grace." The preacher tried to show that if "we would commit our all into God's hands and trust Him fully the danger of falling from grace would be greatly minimized." He appealed to Christians to make their consecration complete and to sinners to surrender themselves for pardon and regeneration. Mr. Hoover and Miss Bridegum sang a duet just before the message of the evening.

A prayer and praise service was held in the United Brethren church this afternoon at 2:30 under the direction of the evangelists. The open-air meeting at 7 o'clock will be held at Brinstone Corner. In case the weather does not permit of the holding of the out of doors service there will be a prayer meeting at the church at 7 o'clock.

Cottage prayer meetings will be resumed on Wednesday afternoon. Those desiring meetings at their home are asked to come prepared tonight to announce it, giving name and address to Rev. Lambertson, Rev. Showers or Rev. Richardson.

FATHER-SON DAYS

Sunday, February 2 and Tuesday, February 4, Set Aside.

Preparations are being made in Fayette county for the annual observance of Father and Son Day in the Sunday schools on Sunday, February 2, and Tuesday, February 4, the latter day being set aside for the banquet. Rev. A. F. Hanes, pastor of the Christian church at South Brownsville, is endeavoring to stir up interest in the movement in his capacity as county superintendent of the young people's division of the Sunday school organization.

On Sunday morning pastors are asked to preach to parents on "The Profession of Parenthood." At the Sunday school session it is suggested that the men's classes invite the boys' classes to be their guests. For the evening service the plan is to have the boys in charge—boy ushers, boy choirs and talks by the boys on the theme, "The Boys and the Sunday School."

The banquet on Tuesday night is intended for all boys of 12 years and over and their fathers.

The above program is outlined by the state Sunday school organization. The observance has been postponed until the date announced on account of influenza epidemic.

FAYETTE MEN FARE WELL IN APPOINTMENTS

W. C. Ritchie is Named as Postmaster of the Senate at Harrisburg.

Aaron H. Goodman, Connellsville, Lands Place as Copyholder in the House; Uniontown Man also on the List; Several New Measures Appear.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 28.—Fayette countians, among whom are two from Connellsville, have again fared well in the distribution of appointments in the Legislature. W. C. Ritchie has been named postmaster of the Senate; Harry A. Bartenslager of Uniontown, assistant clerk of the House; George W. Walton, Jr., of Connellsville, a page, and Aaron H. Goodman of Connellsville, a copyholder in the House.

Among the bills introduced in the House yesterday are the following:

Extending the benefits of the Soldiers' Orphans Industrial School to the orphans of honorably discharged soldiers, sailors and marines in the war with Germany; authorizing county commissioners to appropriate funds for memorials to soldiers, sailors and marines; providing that preference be shown veterans of the war in appointments by the state on all public work.

Two measures relating to the return of automobile license funds to counties have been introduced. One provides for the return of these funds to the counties in proportion as the miles of county roads is to the number of miles of county road in the state, and holding the county commissioners responsible for the maintenance of the county roads. The other bill provides for the payment of license fees into a county highway fund for the construction of new roads.

Another bill would give school directors $2 each regular session of the board they attend. Another authorizes cities of the third-class to make appropriations for municipal music.

From present indications action on ratification of the prohibition amendment will not be taken for a week or two, there being likelihood that a hearing or two will be had before a third reading of the Vickerman bill. James H. Maurer, Socialist, and former member of the House, appeared before the law and order committee today in opposition to ratification.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The French liner LaLorraine, from whose decks the Misses Gladys and Dorothea Cromwell leaped to their death as the vessel was leaving Bordeaux, according to dispatches from the French port, was expected to dock here late today. A wireless message from Captain Caussin, relayed to the line offices here by the Paris office of the company, made no reference to their suicide, saying only that the Misses Cromwell were not aboard, though their baggage was in their staterooms.

BREAKING RIGHT WAY

Coal Situation in Fairmont Region Reported More Encouraging.

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Jan. 28.—Encouraging sales of coal have been consummated within the past 48 hours and this more than anything else will put heart into the coal trade because in one instance coal was sold 17 cents in excess of the government price, effective February 1, and the other was a big contract for coal at the government figure.

HEART LAID BARE; CONTRACTS "FLU;" STILL WOODDALE YOUTH HAS A HEALTHY GRIP ON LIFE

Chest Torn Open, Surgeons Felt Sure Clarence Wingrove Could Not Live.

NOW ABLE FOR LONG WALK

Non-fatal wounds in battle do not often present a more serious case than that of Clarence Wingrove of Bullskin township, who on last July 13 was injured in a mine near West Overton and who now has not only recovered from that but also from an attack of influenza. While at work in the mine with his father, Harry Wingrove, whose home is near Wooddale, Clarence, who was just 16, was caught by a mine wagon. The flesh was torn from his left side in the region of the heart and the bones crushed, laying bare the heart which also did not escape the rending instrument.

In order to properly work with the injured boy it was necessary for one of the surgeons to take the heart in his hands while another made use of the instrument. There was no hope that the boy would recover—that he would live more than a few hours. But he did. For weeks he lay in the hospital with a drainage tube protruding from the thoracic cavity. Then he was able to go home.

Later influenza developed but he is now out again and able to walk a fairly distance.

Clarence comes of a rugged family. Many years ago his father received injuries when a cyclonic storm wrecked their home in the mountains near Wooddale that would have cost the life of an ordinary individual but he came through, badly scarred.

CONDITIONS ARE TERRIBLE IN THE CITY OF PERM

PRISONERS ARE EXECUTED

Persons Longest in Jails Are Shot to Make Room For Newcomers When Congestion Becomes Too Great; Condemned Forced to Dig Graves.

By Associated Press.

OMSK, Central Siberia, Friday, Jan. 24.—Death stalked the streets of Perm until the city was captured by General Gaida, according to the official report of an investigator who has just returned from the Ural front. So terrible were conditions under the Bolshevik regime that the frightened people have not yet recovered.

There are no children less than a year old in Perm, all having died, says the report, which adds that in three months the whole population would probably have perished.

The report states that the Bolsheviki regarded all bourgeois inhabitants of the city, even those ruined and dying, as outside the law. When the jail was overcrowded the inmates which had been imprisoned longest were shot to make room for the newcomers, it is declared.

There are well-authenticated cases of torture, according to the report, which says some of the condemned were compelled to dig their own graves and rehearsals of executions were staged during the hours before the doomed people were put to death. Men were plunged into water until nearly drowned and were then revived so that their torture could continue while some prisoners were buried alive and others were mutilated, the report states.

Women were forced to dig trenches, were often flogged and sometimes killed, it is said. Peasants were forbidden last June to take provisions into the city. Some people had supplies, but these were found and seized by the Bolsheviki who spread terror throughout the whole region near Perm.

REV. BUCKNER SPEAKS ON "SAUL OF TARSUS;" BIBLE DRILL TONIGHT

Most Interesting Feature of the Week at Christian Church Scheduled for Tonight.

Monday nights seem to have no ill effects on the attendance at the revival at the Christian church, a splendid audience being present last night. Both the choruses were well filled and the singing was spirited. Mr. Boyer played a xylophone solo which was well received.

Rev. G. W. Buckner spoke on "The Conversion of Saul of Tarsus," maintaining that there never will be one that will compare with this miraculous conversion.

Tonight will be one long to be remembered. The children will be in charge of the preliminary service and will give their "Bible Drill," on which they have been working for the past week. This drill has been given in Iowa, Illinois, Ohio, Wisconsin and some other cities in Pennsylvania, and has been a great feature. To miss it is to deny yourself of a rare treat. Mr. and Mrs. Boyer will play a duet on the xylophone, accompanied by James Charlesworth at the piano. A great service is expected.

The sermon will be on "The Prodigal Son."

REDS ARE REPULSED

British and Americans Drive Back Bolsheviki on Dvina River.

By Associated Press.

ARCHANGEL, Monday, Jan. 27.—Bolshevik forces failed in an attempt last midnight to drive American and British troops from their positions at Tulgas on the Dvina river, southwest of Archangel. Earlier the enemy had bombarded the positions with artillery.

On the right bank of the river the American troops met a small enemy patrol and drove them back. On the left bank the Allies encountered 150 Bolsheviki in a wood early this morning and disbursed them, taking prisoners. The Allies suffered no casualties. Prisoners said that a general attack had been planned but a majority of the Bolsheviki lost themselves in the woods.

According to refugees who are fleeing from Shenkursk to safety in the American lines the Bolsheviki have burned Shenkursk and massacred many of the inhabitants.

NOW FUTURIST FACE POWDER

Mauve, Yellow and Green Tints Made by Fashion's Leaders From Pearl Dust.

The post impressionist artists, painting as they do mauve, yellow green and brown flesh tints, have given a new idea to manufacturers of cosmetics

The fashionable woman may now tint her complexion in any tone as easily as she may assume a toilette in that color One manufacturer is showing face powders in shades called violet yellow, emerald, old rose and ashen rose.

These new tints are recommended only for evening wear, as it is generally admitted that they would be too grotesque for daylight. The amazing thing, however, is that they really look well on the skin and when applied give only the faintest suggestion of shadowy color Thus, when the mauve powder is used, the shadows have a sort of purple bloom which is rather becoming and lends softness to the face accentuating in small degree the expression of the eyebrows and eyelashes and also intensifying the color of the eyes The purple tint is usually recommended for brunettes with blue or gray eyes

Yellow powder is flattering to blondes, who need to intensify the yellow in their skins to correspond with the shadows cast from golden hair This intensifies the type and makes it much warmer looking therefore much harmonious than if the face were tinted with either white or so-called flesh-colored powder

The most difficult of all the new shades to conceive as having a place among beauty applications is the green powder But through demonstration it is proved that certain types of coloring look well with the green tint, notably ashen blondes who have the reflection of green lights from the hair This is also recommended for types too florid, whether blonde or brunette It is said to give a cool clean look to such skins

The rose color is not at all the old fashioned flesh pink, but a sort of salmon tinted old rose This is a color which would be well suited to a neutral brunette as it would warm the type giving body and a look of strength to the skin and a consequent —healthlike flush.

It is an interesting fact that these new cosmetics are made from powder of real pearls a discovery of somewhat recent date, though for some time in quite current use in Paris

Woman May Fly Ocean.

Miss Ruth Bancroft Law and her brother, F Rodman Law are to try a flight across the Atlantic in a biplane They expect to make the trip in July

"The flight will be from Newfoundland to the Irish coast,' said Miss Law today and I shall take my brother I do not think there is the slightest doubt that we can do it We shall carry no pontoons or boats, but under the wings of our machine we will have three floats of hollow tin, so in case of a fall the apparatus will float Boats would be too heavy to carry, and in case we fell they would be of no use in the ocean Then again by not carrying them we get away from just so much weight We shall have to carry from 90 to 100 gallons of gasoline and this will be enough for about 30 hours' flying We expect to make 100 miles an hour on our way across Lord Northcliffe has offered a prize for the successful flight across the Atlantic and we are after it."

Light Plant Runs Itself

An automatic electric lighting plant, designed for private house use, is mounted on two cross girders for convenient portability, and comprises an oil engine dynamo, automatic starting switch and water tank

The small battery also supplied has a capacity much below that of the charging plant The apparatus is so designed that while the battery is charged and not at work the engine is at rest and it continues at rest while the lamps turned on are being fed sufficiently by the stored current

But when the battery voltage falls below a certain point the automatic switch sets the machinery in motion The starting current—quickly cut off by a time-limit circuit breaker—turns the dynamo, and this starts the engine which runs as long as needed

When the lessened use of current permits the battery to become sufficiently charged the switch stops the engine

Why Youngster Was Mad.

"You're a nice little fellow," said the new pastor to the small son of the household where he was making his first call Come over here and shake hands and let's get acquainted, won't you?

"Nope," was the grudging answer "Won't, either"

"But why not sonnie?" from the surprised visitor 'Why don't you want to be friends with me? I haven't done anything to hurt or vex you, have I?"

"Yep! Had to have my face an' hands washed an' my Sunday clothes on just 'cause you've come."

"That Beautiful Pyrex Casserole Didn't Cost Me A Penny—I Got It Free With Dilworth's Admiral Coffee Coupons!"

"I have used Dilworth's Admiral Coffee for years—it is the best Coffee at the price I have ever found. So you can imagine how eagerly I began to save my coupons when I learned that, while continuing to use my favorite Coffee, I could also gratify my ambition for Pyrex. And without costing a penny extra, either, as the price of this splendid Coffee has not been raised on account of the premiums."

Dilworth's Admiral Coffee

"The Coffee With A Million Friends"

In each pound of Dilworth's Admiral Coffee is packed one coupon. A list showing you how many coupons are necessary to secure each particular piece of Pyrex is in most packages or will be furnished by grocers. Your grocer also has a sample of Pyrex, so you can see for yourself just what this beautiful ware is like. These Pyrex premiums are creating a sensation. No other premium is like it, and thousands of housewives are acquiring a set under this wonderful offer of ours.

What the Dilworth Roasting Process Is

First, the coffee beans are systematically forced through a sheet of flame which, in effect, really toasts them evenly and seals within the bean the natural flavor which remains there until the coffee is served fragrant and flavory on your table Second, the coffee is cooled by the Dilworth dry process, which insures your getting about one-sixth more coffee for your money, than if cooled by the customary wet process, whereby the coffee must absorb a part of the water

Pyrex, being transparent permits you to watch the process as the bread is being baked, or the roast is being done. Also, being of glass it reflects the heat so that the bottom of your pies or bread are as brown as the top. If you have never used Pyrex, you will be pleased with the wonderful results when you try it.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTTDALE, Jan. 28.—On Saturday evening the West Newton high school defeated the Scottdale high school by a score of 27 to 23 in one of the fastest games of the season. Without a doubt West Newton was the best passing team that the local high five ever met. West Newton's guards seemed to shake off Scottdale defense and took the ball down the floor time and again and made their baskets. West Newton led from the beginning of the game, never being headed except once in the third quarter when two successful field goals were made by Murphy and one each by Lester and Humes. These gave Scottdale a momentary advantage. Scottdale, however, put up a hard game, forcing West Newton to exert itself constantly in order to maintain its few points' advantage. Captain Humes put on an excellent exhibition of floor work.

Lineup:—

West Newton—27.		Scottdale—23.
Landymore	F	Humes, Capt.
Yex	F	Gordon
Goehring	C	Murphy
Furkhart	G	Lester

Three Days of Courtesy Precede Our February Sale

Tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock the doors of this store swing open, inaugurating three days of courtesy and inspection, preceding our February Sale which starts Saturday, February 1st. For three days you may come and freely wander through our immense displays of Furniture, Rugs, Carpets, Stoves and Homefurnishings, selecting the articles you desire or merely noting the price reductions of those pieces that you may be interested in. You will be under no obligation to make any purchases and our entire Store from the Basement up is open for your inspection.

An Opportunity to Inspect Our Great Stock of Furniture at Your Leisure

It is not our purpose to sell Furniture during these three days of courtesy. Rather it is our hope that you will feel free to come and view our large stocks, NOTE THE SUPERIOR QUALITY OF THE MERCHANDISE OFFERED, and perhaps reserve the articles you desire to purchase during this Sale. Everything is marked in plain figures—you may practically be your own salesman but we will be glad to assist you in every way. If you are planning on new Furniture this Spring you owe it to yourself to take advantage of this opportunity to examine our vast stocks during these days of courtesy.

Everything in our entire Store will be included in the February Sale—reductions varying from 10% to 35%. That means by buying at Aaron's during the month of February you can save from 20% to 50% of the price you would pay elsewhere—because we always give larger values for less money. Feel free to come in at any time—stay as long as you wish—and ask all the questions you desire. It will indeed be a pleasure for us to show you what we have and it will also be to your advantage to choose the Furniture and Homefurnishings you need during these three days of courtesy.

Proving the Bona Fide Character of Our Sale Prices

Our purpose in opening our Store for three days before the February Sale is a courtesy to our patrons that will afford them an opportunity to prove for themselves that our reductions are absolutely bona fide in character. Every article on our Floors will have the ORIGINAL as well as the FEBRUARY SALE Tag attached—so that you can see for yourself just how much the regular price has been reduced. This will prove to the skeptical that our Sale prices are genuine reductions.

Furniture Prices Are Now at Their Lowest Level

We have just returned from the January Furniture Exhibition in Grand Rapids and from all indications it will be years before Furniture and Homefurnishing prices are any lower than they are right now. Materials are still scarce and high in price and re-adjustments of labor have not materially lessened the cost of Furniture of good quality. In addition to these facts the demand for Furniture, quickened by the needs of the returning soldier and his bride, has greatly increased. The result of this situation is that manufacturing facilities have not been enlarged with sufficient rapidity to take care of the large and increasing need for Furniture. As a consequence, prices are not liable to fall for some period of time.

Practically all of the Furniture, Rugs, Carpets, Stoves and Homefurnishings in our Store and Warehouses today were purchased at a distinct saving—so that even at the regular prices they are larger values than you could possibly obtain elsewhere. And now with the ADDITIONAL 10% to 35% savings—that makes this the greatest money-saving opportunity that will ever be offered to you. Don't hesitate—don't delay if you are intending to furnish your Home complete or add a few new pieces to brighten your present Home. Feel free to come and get our prices during these three great days of courtesy and inspection which start tomorrow.

Prospective Brides and Newlyweds

What a wonderful opportunity our February Sale will offer to discharged Soldiers and Sailors who are planning to go to housekeeping or to get married. Come in during these three days of courtesy—note the reductions on every article—then figure how much of a saving you can make by selecting your Outfit now. We'll gladly reserve any articles at this time which you may have delivered later at these Sale prices. Our charge account system enables you to make the payments to suit your convenience.

Goods Held For Future Delivery

The selections you make now will be held—FREE OF CHARGE—for delivery at any future time you say. In that way you can have the goods exactly when you want it and still enjoy these immense savings. Every article you purchase during this Sale must give complete satisfaction at all times—backed up by the usual Aaron "satisfaction guarantee."

Meyersdale.

MEYERSDALE, Jan. 27.—The regular monthly meeting of the Men's Bible class of the Methodist Episcopal church was held last Friday evening in the social room of the church. After the regular business meeting a few hours were spent in a social gathering. J. J. Hoblitzell, Jr., is president of the class and James E. McCartney, teacher, and to these gentlemen much credit is due for the excellent program prepared for the evenings entertainment. A quartette composed of Rev. Alexander Steele, Prof. Wm. Butler, W. C. Price and B. S. Rush, rendered several selections, and solos were sung by Prof. Butler and Wm. Rush. Mrs. W. C. Price presided at the piano. A debate on, "Resolved, that environment has more to do with molding the lives of men than heredity," affirmative, Rev. Steele, Howard Phillips; negative, H. D. Martin, James E. McCartney. The argument was as strong on both sides that the judges made no decision. Lunch, consisting of sandwiches, ice cream, cake and coffee was served and greatly enjoyed by all. The next regular meeting will be held the third Thursday in February and along with the members of this class the ladies' Bible class and wives of the men's Bible class will meet together and it is hoped all will try to be present as there is a good time in store for them.

Miss Kathryn Sipple, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Sipple, very delightfully entertained on last Friday evening by giving a farewell party to her friend Miss Kathryn Siehl, who leaves next week with her parents, Mr and Mrs. Henry Siehl to reside in Somerset. There were 24 guests present who spent the evening in playing various games and music, and at a late hour a most delicious lunch was served.

Mrs. Richard Mankamyer and little son left Saturday for Akron, O., where they will join Mr. Mankamyer and will reside in the future.

Ira Baer has returned to Connellsville after spending a week here with relatives and friends.

Mrs. J. C. Coget returned to her home in Somerset, Saturday after a few days visit here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cook.

Mr and Mrs. Michael McDevitt of Rossiter spent the week end here with their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Reich.

Miss Helen Baer is home from Cumberland where she visited relatives for a few days.

L. M. Weld has returned from a business trip east.

Armor Again In Use.

An ancient calling is again very much alive. The armorer is at work turning out armor for fighting men; and, in a most distinguished case, the chief armorer of the Metropolitan Museum of Fine Arts, New York, Daniel Tachaux, has been working for modern warriors with the very hammers and anvils that once were used in armoring their medieval forerunners. To be sure, armor nowadays is not so cumbersome that when the wearer is upset he has to lie flat on his back until somebody kindly stands him up again; but it has turned out that, for practical purposes modern design adds nothing to the protective detail of the separate pieces of old-time armor.

A GOOD WORK AWAITING A NEW CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

Some Fayette countains are at times disposed to point to the sister county of Greene as an example of backwardness along certain lines of up-to-date internal improvements. Even if there existed substantial reason for such an attitude to be assumed on this side of the Monongahela, it cannot be said to longer exist insofar as relates to steps in the direction of highway betterment. Appreciating the advantages accruing from a more extensive system of good roads the Greene County Board of Trade is actively setting about to secure the construction of two important highways, one connecting Rice's Landing with Waynesburg and another linking the county capital with the county seat of the neighboring county of Washington.

"The board of trade," says the Waynesburg Democrat-Messenger, "is to be commended for the action it has taken and whether or not the project bears fruit depends largely upon the kind of support the people of the county accord it. Greene county is far behind her sister counties in the matter of improved highways and the probable reason is that the people of our county have never put forth an organized movement to secure the roads we deserve and need so badly. If Greene county is ever to get her share of good roads the people must lay aside all selfishness. In the past the proposed building of a road has received the support of only the few whose properties were situated along the proposed route. Others who did not benefit directly would not give their support. The sensible way to get the improved roads which we want would seem to be to select the roads in the order of their importance and then go after their improvement not with the support of a few, but of all the people of the county."

What our Waynesburg contemporary says of Greene is also true of Fayette, in respect to the necessity for coöperation of effort by citizens generally in the matter of securing road improvements and the effectiveness of organization for that purpose.

Fayette county, if it would keep step with other progressive counties, ought not longer to delay the formation of a good roads association, the chief object of which should be to outline a comprehensive road plan for the whole county then devote its attention to having improvements made as part of the system. It is not possible to provide immediately, or within the space of a year or two, all the roads the county needs to give it a modern means of communication between important sections; but it is entirely possible, through proper coöperative efforts, to build up such a system by additions from year to year.

If the several communities which are in greatest need of better roads would willingly join hands with each other, through the medium of local organizations having representation in a county organization, the betterment of the county's highways ought to progress systematically. The situation is one affording a fine opportunity to display the team work spirit that accomplished such great things in this county in behalf of the war-time activities. As the people of the county would themselves be the beneficiaries there should be equal willingness to make the road improvement plan county-wide just as was done when boosting Liberty Bonds, War Savings Stamps and the War Chest.

To give the movement momentum and direction in the Connellsville district and vicinity a reorganized Chamber of Commerce, acting in conjunction with the promoters of the Connellsville-to-Farmington road, could give the whole county a magnificent example in how to seize an opportunity for doing constructive work that will be permanent in its results and of material benefit to a large number of progressive and energetic citizens, tributary to an important commercial and industrial center. At the same time it would point the way for other sections of the county to join in a concerted movement for a county-wide road improvement program.

The action of Secretary Baker in granting honorable discharges to 113 so-called conscientious objectors from the disciplinary barracks at Fort Leavenworth, with full pay which they carefully counted when receiving it, has stirred the red-blooded patriots in the Kansas legislature to protest. They have struck a responsive chord in the heart of every good American by characterizing the action of the secretary of war as "mischievous, unwise, unpatriotic, un-American and destructive to the morale of every person wearing the uniform of the United States Army" and declaring it "places a premium on slackerism, cowardice and mawkish sentimentality."

On the proposal to hold a conference with the Bolsheviki the same Russians are silent in taking the same position the Allies did when asked by the Pope to confer with the Hohenzollerns. One bunch of murders cannot be trusted any more than the other.

It has been but a short twelve month since the ex-kaiser's 53th birthday, but a whole century of disappointment, chagrin and bitter defeat has been experienced by him in that brief period.

The soldiers are coming back much faster on the plans of the War Department than they are on the transports.

With the big Minneapolis flouring mills closed down and more flour on hands than they can sell there must be "a reason," or several of them, why the patient and long suffering consumer still has to pay the war-time price.

No, Anxious Reader, the movement of the Fayette County School Directors' Association to democratize the schools does not mean that the pupils are to be urged to become Democrats; rather will they be impressed with the necessity of becoming Americans instead of partisans.

The street car fare protestants refuse to grant an armistice.

The Cohort of The Damned

Douglas Reid, in the Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Now that the war is done, secrets will out. Behind the censorship have lain great stories; terrors; weird, bizarre truths that may now do no harm by the telling. One of these has to do with a strange and romantic group of men, "The Cohort of the Damned," who lived in glory and tragedy, destined to fight and die as shunned heroes. They are the French airmen whose temperaments led them to a fevered, passionate love of flying, so strong that they forgot duty, discipline, routine, and became mentally unhinged on their hobby—airplaning. Under the strain of war in the clouds they lost poise, "went wild," and strove to fly and fight continually. But as aerial observation became more and more useful; as the opposing armies learned how valuable was a system of "eyes in the clouds," the air services of the antagonists became disciplined. Men went up with definite orders as to what to look for and when to return.

Then Boelke and Von Richthofen, the leading Hun aces, began to appear over the lines leading "circuses"—ten to fifty gayly painted planes flying in formation—a definite unit. Only after months of steady losses, did the allies force their airmen to drop this gallant but suicidal point of honor, and to form similar squadrons of equal force to do battle with the organized Hun.

As soon as the French began to send up these circuses they discovered trouble. A certain number of the airmen refused to fly in formation. Either from impatience or a mistaken sense of the dramatic, they would break away from the squadron, disregard the orders of the flight commander, and dart away erratically to do battle on their own account. Punishment for these irresponsible fliers did not cure them. So the French air service set psychologists and trained nerve specialists to study the offenders. These scientists discovered that the insubordinates were slightly unbalanced mentally, that their daily labors under extreme nerve tension and constant excitement had carried them beyond complete sanity.

The French realized that they were, man for man, better than their German opponents, for their very disregard of rules and regulations, their very carelessness of death, made them terrible foes. So it organized a special corps, called "The Cohort of the Damned," filling it entirely with these untrustworthy pilots; placed it apart from all organized esquadrilles; forbade its members to approach the regular branches of the service; isolated it entirely at a point near the front-line trenches; furnished it with the best equipment, and turned it free to fight at its own sweet will. No records could be kept of the number they shot down, on account of their lack of organization and the irresponsibility of their testimony. Captured Germans, however, are known to have reported that their own fliers swore fervently and wrote their wills when ordered to occupy that part of the line opposite the "Cohort."

"The Cohort of the Damned" at present, it is understood, is to be kept in service after the mustering out of the other French forces. It is deemed impossible to return the men to civil life, as their hunger for excitment and craving for thrill would immediately cause them to be disturbers of the peace. Consequently the French army will send them across into Algeria to be used policing the desert wastes, holding the native tribes in check. One of them, using an airplane to traverse the parched and dangerous deserts, will be worth more than a regiment of cavalry, the branch that garrisoned the province before the war.

The Non-Partisan Judiciary Ballot.

Philadelphia Press.

There is good reason for repealing the non-partisan judiciary act. It does not work rationally and it brings about freak results. It has been a disappointment to its friends. The non-partisan ballot would be an ideal way of electing judges, if the great body of voters possessed an intelligent and discriminating understanding of the qualifications of candidates for judicial positions, if they felt sufficient interest in the election of judges to vote for them and if they were not obsessed by a stupid preference for voting for the first man alphabetically on the list. But our voters are not at present built that way. Only a portion of them will vote for the judges and most of them vote blindly without having any real choice but with a fixed tendency to concentrate on the first name alphabetically on the ticket. The convention plan did better than that. Even a party label on a judicial candidate following the direct primary plan of nomination would be some guide. It would at least prevent the election of an anarchist to the bench, whereas under the non-partisan plan if his name begins with "A" and he is sufficiently obscure he would have some chance of getting in.

This branch of the W C T U has taken up all kinds of children's relief work in Europe Information has come from the national headquarters that the sending of photographs to persons adopting children be stopped This has created considerable trouble as mothers living in out of the way places and in war torn sections have no way of having photographs taken The following has been suggested instead After getting the name of the child adopted and getting in touch with the child the money for the picture may be sent direct to France to the child allowing it to send a photograph if convenient Mrs. Stoner has a campaign on at this time for the adoption of either French or Belgian children which ever people wish to take

ARCHIE RICHARDSON'S DIVISION STARTS FOR HOME ON JANUARY 30

Good News is Received by Pastor of Methodist Episcopal Church and His Wife.

Good news to Rev and Mrs G L C Richardson has come in a letter from their son Private Archie M Richardson of the 112th Field Signal Battalion, in which he says that the 37th Division of which his command is a part is scheduled to leave for America on January 3 Two letters were received both written from Wylder France The first speaks of the early return It was written New Year day The second written the next day follows

Just finished supper and am now sitting around the fire in the home of the town miller The family (French) are at supper A fellow is lucky over in this country when he can find a warm place to loaf The barn (he has been sleeping in a barn in Wylder for six weeks) is warm enough to keep in but not good for a loafing place

'We are going to have a waffle supper' here at 6 o clock The old miller let us have some sugar from the kitchen He has cows and we will have real butter on the waffles Well, we have just 2" more nights in France and I am counting the days like a kid counts the days till Christmas To be alive well and yet so near to the time for going home is surely heaven to me While the war was on I hardly knew whether I would get home or not and the chances sometimes seemed slim but I will be one happy boy when I set foot in old 512 South Pittsburg street Connellsville Pennsylvania U S A Say Boy' I am going to put on a suit of civilian clothes sweater slippers and camp right in front of the fire in dad's chair Think of a daily paper magazines good books and good cooking like ont Mom can produce How I will appreciate my home' I will dream about it every night and think about it every day till we get home I am glad I am through school I will have no deans or profs to bother about I am coming home game to tackle an job on earth or to buck up against anything that may come my way

After facing the Prussian Guards as we did in both the Argonne forest and at St Mihiel and up in Belgium and taking the territory the Dutch were ordered to hold to the death and Prussian Guards at that I think I can get by with any job that I see fit to tackle I am through worrying about the future and am ready to live When in college I used to always be wondering what I would do and afraid I could not do anything I don't know now just what I will do but I sure will do it whatever it is Well here's hoping I will soon see the old parsonage and inmates

Private Richardson enclosed a copy of a general order of General Degoutte of the French army lauding the valor of the 37th and 91st divisions in crushing the enemy resistance between Lys and the Lacaut in October and then with unheard of audacity crossing the river under fire and maintaining themselves on the opposite bank

'Glory to such troops and their chiefs' says the French commander They have valiantly contributed to the liberation of a part of Belgium and to final victory

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain. How to Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine tenths of the cases of stomach trouble indigestion sourness burning gas bloating nausea, etc. are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices The delicate stomach lining is irritated digestion is delayed and food sours causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating This sweetens the stomach prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness gas or pain Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion —Adv

HUN SHIFT COST BELGIANS JOBS

Not a Factory in Country Can Be Operated.

900,000 WORKMEN ARE IDLE

All Machinery and Tools in Belgium Were Carried Off by German Invaders, — Work of Destruction Stopped on President Wilson's Protest—Spirit of People Is Untouched by Years of Oppression.

Nine hundred thousand workmen in liberated Belgium are idle because the Germans carried off all machinery and tools in the country. Not a factory in the country can be operated.

The Germans wrecked two mines before they were stopped in their work of destruction by President Wilson's protest.

The other mines may be opened soon, but the factories must wait for machinery. When it will come nobody knows.

But the spirit of the people is untouched by the years of oppression. Nightly parades and the clatter of wooden shoes as they dance in the streets prove this.

Government appraisers are now out in all parts of Belgium reviewing the damage done by the Huns for the restoration bill which is now being drawn up. This bill will be presented to the peace conference.

There is about seven weeks' food supply in Belgium. During the days of German occupation the rich had everything, but the middle class suffered terribly. The workmen existed by means of soup kitchens.

Ample Food on Hand.

The hotels now have ample food stores which the Germans left. Thirty thousand eggs were found in the Deutsch bank.

Other food was stolen by the Germans from their own stores and sold to the Belgians during the retreat, including herds of cattle at $10 a head. In the hotels and shops of Bruges, Brussels and Ghent almost anything may be had, but the prices are high because the supplies are limited.

The masses of the population are still dependent on the committees which have undertaken to handle the food problem.

Pork and beef are about $3 a pound, butter is $2.50 and eggs are 50 cents each.

Belgium is prostrate, hungry, but joyous. She is putting her best foot forward, hiding her pain and "carrying on" till things get going again.

Dozens of Belgians have told me with touching confidence that America was going to send Hoover to direct the work of reconstruction. This is generally believed by the Belgians.

I entered Belgium from Calais and passed the first thin string of thriving little gardens running right to the edge of No Man's Land, where everything suddenly became a barren and pock-marked desert. There the only life was the German prisoners working on the railways and their guards and the little families of refugees standing amid the ruins of what once had been home.

On the east of the old German lines it is still beautiful Belgium. Dixmude is but a rockpile, but Brussels and Ghent appear undamaged until you enter the factories stripped of their machinery and the homes stripped of their copper and brass and wool.

At Bruges, where the orgies of the U-boat crews were held, the Germans in their hasty evacuation left a sergeant to bring on the string of flags from the public square—flag for each ship the U-boats had sunk. The flags are still there. The sergeant is said to have accepted a final drink and left them.

Brand Whitlock, American minister, who arrived in Brussels the day before King Albert, was given a great ovation. It took him hours to make his way through the cheering crowds to his home. He was made an honorary burgher of the city. Antwerp had already conferred a similar honor.

Four days after the Germans left Brussels the Belgians had erected a beautiful plaster model for a statue to America and another to Edith Cavell. They will remain until they are replaced by stone.

The Belgians pouring back into their country from the west, from Holland and from Germany are all smiles. The place they are making for may be only a pile of ruins, or a house stripped of all furnishings, but it's HOME.

The Best Cough Syrup Is Home-made

Here's an easy way to save $2; and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or night cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

FLYERS THEIR ESPECIAL CARE

Corps of Doctors and Trainers to Look After the Aviators in This Country and Abroad.

For the care and conditioning of flyers in the air service the United States government is now appointing a corps of doctors and trainers large enough to equip each training field and camp for flyers, both here in the United States and in France, with a proper organization. The doctors will be known as flight surgeons and the trainers as physical directors. The medical branch of the air service is not alone confined to the selection of the flyer, but to his care and condition after he has been admitted to the service. It has become apparent that the flyer is unlike other soldiers, comments Science. In the air service he has become an intricate, highly sensitized piece of mechanism with troubles all his own. To keep his complex organism physically fit a special master mechanic had to be provided solely for him.

The flight surgeon, therefore, has been given freedom of independent initiative in all questions of fitness of the flyers. Subject to the approval of the commanding officer, he is expected to institute such measures as periods of rest, recreations and temporary excuse from duty as may seem advisable. He takes sick calls of aviators, he visits such cases as may be in the hospital and consults with the attending surgeon regarding them. He makes the examination of candidates for aviation and lives in close touch with flyers.

The physical directors are assistants to the flight surgeons and their duty is to supervise such recreation and physical training of the flyers as are considered necessary.

FAMOUS MEN OF GREEN ISLE

Country Has Few More Picturesque Figures Than the Three Widely Known Myles Brothers.

Lieut. Col. Sir Thomas Myles, M. D., —better known as Sir Tom Myles—who has been in America on a British medical mission, is one of the most picturesque figures in Irish life. As medical students in Trinity college, Dublin, the three Myles brothers were famous for their encounters with members of the "heavyweight" division of the Metropolitan police. It used to be said of the Myles brothers, that, if they found it necessary to beat up the Dublin "finest" at night, they were equally assiduous in patching them up in the morning. So there was no hard feeling on either side.

Sir Thomas was knighted in 1902 when he was president of the College of Surgeons in Ireland. It was as house surgeon in Steven's hospital that he made the first examination of the bodies of Burke and Cavendish, the victims of the famous Phoenix park murders. The strange thing was that, at the moment, neither Sir Thomas nor the police knew that one of the bodies was that of the chief secretary, and the other that of the under secretary for Ireland.

It is a habit of the Myles family to be over six feet in height, and with shoulders and flats in proportion. In the Zulu war one of the chiefs was run to earth in his kraal by the British, who wished to capture him alive. Volunteers were asked for and Sir Thomas' brother John undertook the task. He crawled through the long covered entrance and came out ten minutes later, dragging the kicking potentate behind him by the scruff of the neck.

Go Him Going.

And full of interferences,
The fellow has his work cut out
Who's keeping up appearances.

SOLDIERS DEMAND BIBLES

Three Great Publishing Houses Work Night and Day to Supply Demand.

Three great publishing houses in America, England and Scotland are obliged to keep their presses running night and day to supply the demands of the soldiers for Bibles, declares Rev. William Axtell Hill, New England secretary of the American Baptist Foreign Missionary society.

"The Bible is called for more than any book among the soldiers," said Rev. Mr. Hill. "It is printed in 31 languages and a copy lasts a soldier on an average about three months. So four copies are given each applicant. There never was a time in the history of the world when men longed more for the Scriptures."

CITY LOVED BY FRENCHMEN

Country's Glory Indissolubly Connected With Reims, Especially Its Old and Marvelous Cathedral.

If citations of Metz have especially interested American readers, references to Reims have appealed most to the French themselves. For Reims is very dear to them—for historic, for patriotic, for religious, and for literary reasons. Nothing, perhaps, has rejoiced our French allies more than the fact that the Germans have never been able to take Reims, however close they have come to it.

It is the damage that has been done to the glorious cathedral of Reims that constitutes one of the greatest artistic tragedies of the war. Here, in this magnificent cathedral, the kings of Imperial France were crowned. Here Joan of Arc led Charles VII to his coronation—the sainted Joan who freed Reims from its enemies.

One of the great pieces of news from the western front was to the effect that Reims had been finally and definitely cleared from the menace of the German guns.

Buddy Needed It Worse Than German.

Shaving off a week's growth of beard and capturing Germans at the same time would seem a difficult task to most soldiers, but not so with one American doughboy who entered a dugout just west of Thiaucourt and found that he had walked into the temporary home of a German colonel whose retreat to the rear had been cut off by the barrage.

The colonel was taking his daily shave. He was seated on a stool in front of a large mirror, his face covered with lather.

"Now take that chair in the corner and let somebody shave who needs it," the doughboy commanded.

TEST KIDNEYS AFTER INFLUENZA

Alarming Increase in Kidney and Bladder Disorders Traced to Recent Epidemic.

Influenza is a robber of health and strength, say doctors. While lasting but a few days and comparatively easy of itself to cure, a brief attack often leaves the Kidneys and Bladder in a greatly weakened condition, from which recovery, without proper treatment, is slow if not impossible.

If you have had Influenza and now have to urinate frequently, getting in and out of bed several times a night, or if your urine is dark and cloudy or full of sediment and strong in odor, you should by all means use at once a good safe regulator to clean out the clogged up impurities in your kidneys and set them working right again.

There is a simple, harmless treatment called SOLVAX which is excellent and you can make a very convincing test of it in this way. First, save a sample of your present urine. Then get from A. A. Clarke or any local druggist a small package of Solvax and take a few doses during the day and one before you go to bed. See how much better you sleep—how fine you feel in the morning. After a week's use of Solvax take another sample of urine and compare with the old. Let this simple test and your own eyesight tell the story. Solvax is recommended to wash out Kidney and Bladder impurities and stop Kidney misery before it is too late. It is not at all expensive and any reliable druggist will sell it on a guarantee of money back if in any case it does not bring quick relief.—Adv.

CHAPTER XIV.

Then the Chivvises came back from their vacation unexpectedly early. They had found the hotels expensive and Mr. Chivvis was afraid that his job would be snatched from him if he were not there to hold it down.

Clay called on Daphne that evening and the Chivvises retreated to their own room. But as they could be overheard it was evident that they could overhear, and the lovers found no chance to say any of the things that frightened their souls.

One evening Daphne said to Clay in as low a voice as he could hear: "Mrs. Chivvis is growing uneasy, honey, about our being together every evening. I told her we were engaged, but she didn't seem convinced. Perhaps you would let me wear that beautiful engagement ring again. I was a fool to give it back to you. May I have it ba—"

Clay blenched in misery. "I—I'm afraid I— You see, I hadn't paid much on it; and last week I had an insulting letter from the jeweler. He threatened to sue me and notify my firm, and I—well, I had to send it back."

He was so downcast that she answered with mock cheer: "Oh, that's all right, honey; it doesn't matter. After all, it's only a ring. And we have each other."

"But we haven't each other. This way of living is driving me crazy. I'll be all right as soon as these hard times are over and I can make some commissions. But it's so dismal to wait. Couldn't we get married and live on my salary?"

"I could if you could."

He caught her in his arms so violently that she squealed.

The next day Clay telephoned to her his firm had just offered him the choice of accepting half his salary or turning in his resignation. It was really impossible for two to live on half of what was hardly enough for one.

Daphne cried a long while in her room. She got out her list of ways to earn fifty thousand dollars again and tried over that.

There is much foolish and futile protest against the nowadays woman who goes into business outside her home. But the fact is that it is her business that began it. Her business left the home first and she is merely following it to the places where new conditions and inventions have centralized and mechanized it.

New conditions have taken her distaff and her washtub and her cookery and gossip into the woolen mills and steam laundries and restaurants and telephone exchanges. She has had to go thither to do her necessary work. Even the entertainers, the singers, dancers, tellers of stories, who used to stir the seraglios and the castle halls have been gathered into opera houses and theaters and into vaudeville and moving picture palaces.

Daphne, having no gifts for spinning, cooking, or laundry, tried the theater. Her old-fashioned lover protested, and she went, anyway. But she was not suited to the theater, and she retreated with nothing to show for her expedition except her shattered pride and the fifty-dollar check for two weeks' salary.

Daphne began anew to hunt for work; work, the thrice blessing that kills time and makes money and tames passion. But the world seemed to be full of every other trouble except work. Even had she been skilled, as she was not, it would have availed her little, since skilled laborers were being turned off by the thousands. And unskilled laborers were being turned on by the tens of thousands.

Clay had served nothing against the rainy season. He had found his salary too small for his courtship requisites; now that his salary was halved his courtship had to be reduced to the minimum of expense.

Bayard and Leila had more money to spend, and they made ambitious voyages. But Daphne and Clay must swelter with the other stay-at-home millions. Clay denied himself even the two weeks' vacation allotted to him. Bayard took his, however, and carried Leila off to Newport, where they boarded humbly, if expensively. While they were gone, at their suggestion, Daphne moved down into their apartment. It was large and beautiful, and, as Clay said, it was "not infested with Chivvises."

Now and then Clay quarreled with Daphne because of her obstinate determination to have a trade of her own. Then they made up. And quarreled anew—lovers' quarrels, summer storms that break the sultry tension or the air and make peace endurable.

Bayard came back alone. Leila had decided that it was better for her health to stay at Newport till the cooler weather came and her summer wardrobe had been worn out.

So Bayard joined the army of town-tied husbands, the summer widowers. He went back once a week on furlough to spend a Newport Sabbath with his wife. He became one of the Friday-night-to-Monday-morning excursionists. There was leisure enough in his office.

He insisted on Daphne's keeping her room in his apartment, and of evenings he affixed himself to her and Clay and made their company a crowd. But they welcomed him as a chaperon of a sort. Also, he paid his way with liberality, except for occasional spasms of retrenchment, when he economized atrociously. He predicted that good times would never come again. The whole world had gone to pot and would never come out.

Suddenly he changed his tune; suddenly the whisper went about that hard times were ending.

In his bachelor days, when Bayard was growing in commercial stature like a young giant, he had regarded his business with all the warmth of a poet. His office building was his Acropolis and his office the peculiar temple of his muse; and her name was Profit. He thrilled like a poet to the epic inspiration of a big sale, and he knew a joy akin to the poet's revision of his scansion if he devised a scheme for reducing overhead charge or wastage.

It was thus that he had made himself important enough to advance rapidly in his firm. And he had put a large share of his salary every week into a savings bank. With his extra commissions and bits of unexpected luck he had bought securities of impregnable value. These he had locked away in a safe-deposit vault. They paid him only four or five per cent, but they were as sure as anything mundane. And twice a year they granted him the lofty emotion of the coupon cutter.

He had paid cash for what merchandise he bought and demanded special discounts for it. In time the many mickles made a muckle. He had five thousand dollars' worth of bonds in his safe deposit box.

And then he married—pawned himself at the marriage shop. He kept his hoard a secret from Leila.

Now he saw a chance to use the talents that he had buried in a napkin. He filled the ears of Clay and Daphne with his market jargon. He was as unintelligible to Daphne as a mad Scot talking golfese.

"Look at Q. & O.," he would say; "sold at eighty-five a year ago. Friend of mine bought it. People who were in the know said it was going up. It ought to have gone up, but it didn't. Dropped slowly and sickeningly to forty-three. Today it is forty-six. If I had gone into the market the other day with five thousand dollars and snapped it up at forty-three I'd have cleaned up three hundred and a half in no time."

"First catch your five thousand dollars," said Clay.

Leila Had Decided That It Was Better for Her Health to Stay at Newport Till the Cooler Weather Came and Her Summer Wardrobe Had Been Worn Out.

"I've caught it," said Bayard. "I've had it all along."

"You have?" Clay groaned. "If I'd known that I'd have borrowed it to get married on."

"Not in a million years," said Bayard. "When I've made a killing with this money I'll make you all a present, but you couldn't pry this out of me with a crowbar. I wish I knew where to borrow more. If you can raise any money, Clay, don't you spend it in matrimony. A fellow can get married any time, but it's only once in ten years that you can climb aboard a market after a panic and ride in with the tide."

He went to his safe deposit vault, took out his bonds, carried them to the vice president of his bank, and borrowed all that he could raise on the securities. The bonds had fallen below par on account of the depression, but Bayard was granted 80 per cent of their face value, minus 30 days' discount at 5 per cent.

His anemic bank account was suddenly swollen by three thousand nine hundred and seventy-nine dollars and eighteen cents.

He sought out a broker, a college friend whom he could trust, to advise him honestly. They conferred on the stocks to buy. The old dilemma could not be escaped: those that offered the most profit offered the most risk. To buy on margins was further danger with promise of further profit.

Yet, after all, Bayard felt, to buy outright, however wise, was timid. Even if he doubled his money he would have only eight thousand in place of his four. And eight thousand was no fortune.

The question of what stocks to bet on was a thrilling one, requiring a long war council, but at length the disposition was made and he gave his broker the command to go forward.

The market crept up and up. Bayard turned his profits back into his speculation. He was growing rich. He was planning works of lavish charity, works of art, the purchase of a great reserve fund of securities.

Some years before, when President Taft was inaugurated, every omen was fine. The weather bureau promised fair weather. There was not a hint of storm anywhere upon the continent. And then a blizzard "backed in" from the ocean and played havoc with the throngs. So upon the era of good feeling and democratic equality and civilized peace the European war backed in from nowhere.

A young man from Serbia shot a grand duke of Austria, and the world heard of Sarajevo for the first time, but not the last. The bullet that slew the Austrian heir multiplied itself as by magic into billions of missiles. A young shoemaker from Bavaria, to his great surprise, killed an old Belgian schoolteacher he had never heard of. The schoolteacher fell into a ditch still clasping his umbrella. The shoemaker moved on with a strange appetite for shooting.

Refugees in hordes filled the roads with a new Pharaonic exodus. So many children plodded along in hungry flight that Herod might have been hunting down the innocents again.

With the moral cataclysm went a financial earthquake. The European exchanges flung their doors shut. The American exchanges tried to keep their shop windows open, but had to close them down.

Bayard Kip was among the first casualties. Before he could put in a stop order his margins were gone. He had said that prices, having struck bottom, could go no lower. Now the bottom itself was knocked out.

Prices stopped falling at last because of the closing of the markets. Europe established a general moratorium. America established one of sentiment. Everybody owed somebody else, and everybody gave tolerance because everybody needed it.

Night fell on the commercial world, a night illumined by horrors unknown before. Bayard's factory could not meet even its diminished pay roll. The president of the concern could not borrow a penny at the bank of which he was a director. The factory shut down, sending all its workmen into the hordes of the unemployed. The office forces were reduced to a minimum and the salaries of the minimum further reduced. Clay was thrown out of even his half-job and Bayard was put on half-pay.

Bayard's sober thoughts concerned themselves with extricating himself from the wreckage. It was not possible to debarrass himself of everything. He could not give up his expensive apartment. It was leased for a year and a half more. He could not dismiss his expensive wife; she was leased for ninety-nine years. He could not give up his character, his costly tastes, his zeal for front, the maintenance of a good facade.

The instinct of lovable bluff was seen in his telegram to Leila. He wanted her at home to comfort him, now that he had no business for her to hamper. Besides, he could not afford to keep her at Newport. Out of his ominously small funds he telegraphed her a liberal sum to pay her bills and her railroad fare and parlor car fare. He met her and found her astonishingly beautiful in her millionaire uniform.

He felt like the pauper who received a white elephant for a present. But she was gorgeous in her trappings. They embraced with mutual approval. He laughed:

"I was going to begin economy by cutting out the taxi business, but I couldn't carry a Cleoputra like you in the subway. You look like all the money in the world. And you're worth it." In the taxicab he crushed her to him again in a dismal ecstasy and sighed gayly: "You're too grand for me, honey. I'm busted higher than a kite. You didn't bring home any change, of course."

"I did better than that," she beamed, and, being married to him, made no bones about bending and disclosing one entire silk stocking most elegantly repleted. It was transparent, translucent, indeed, like gossamer over marble, and of a sapling symmetry except for one unsightly knob which she deftly removed and placed in the hand of Bayard.

He did not need to glance at his palm to tell that it was full of bank notes.

"What's all this?" he said.

And she, prim and proper again, chortled. "That's the money you telegraphed me to pay my bills with."

"But—"

"This is no time to pay bills."

"You're a genius," he said.

And she was, in her way.

When they were at home again he told her of his ruinous speculations. She did not reproach him. She was gambler enough to thrill at the high chance, and sportswoman enough not to blame him for losing his stakes.

"Don't you worry!" she said, from his lap, as from a dais. "We'll be rich yet. You mustn't imagine anything else. There's everything in thinking a thing is going to happen. I'm too sensitive to be a Christian Scientist about pain, but I am one about good luck. You must just tell yourself that you're going to come out all right and you will.

"And we must keep up appearances so that other people will believe in us. It's the only way, too, to keep your credit good. I learned that at Newport. People who are people up there never pay their bills. That's why they get trusted everywhere, and have plenty of cash. Their creditors don't dare insult 'em or sue 'em. The only people who get sued are the poor little dubs that pay cash most of the time and then ask to be trusted when they're hard up!"

Bayard had rebuked Leila for spending money on clothes and on amusements. But she had had the fun; she still had the clothes; and where were the fruits of his years of self-denial? Where were his hoarded earnings? His few bonds were irredeemably in pawn. And on the roads of Belgium and East Prussia myriads of wretches who had kept thrift and builded them houses were staggering along in hungry penury, fugitive from shattered homes and wondering about the next day's bread.

DRUGS EXCITE YOUR KIDNEYS, USE SALTS

If Your Back Aches, Hurts or Bladder Bothers, Drink Lots of Water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.—Adv.

PHRASES HAVE BECOME OLD

Changes Demanded by Modern War Have by No Means Kept Pace With Other Matters.

We lack the speed in changing our phrases that we've shown in changing the war game. "Over the top" suggests parapets and paradoses, fire steps and traverses, barbed wire and No Man's Land—the whole rigmarole of stabilization in ditches. Over the top now goes for any sort of advance, charging across wheat fields or deploying through thickets.

"It's a hand grenade game," they told me when we landed in France. It was then, "Forget that rifle stuff," they said.

However, rifles were still being packed around. Nothing else had yet been issued on which to fix bayonets. The Yankees were willing to put some smoke on the grenades and to try to put the plate under instruction, but they rebelled against the mental exercise of trying to forget how to shoot. A sergeant told me of the report some of the men brought back who had been billeted with the British, the story of a Tommy who sprinted half across Flanders dragging his rifle in his left hand and trying to catch up with a routed Heinie raider so that he could hurl a bomb. The sergeant ended up, "Say, believe me, remembering how to shoot has allowed us to forget a lot of that trench stuff in short order."—L. S. Kirkland in Leslie's.

HALF OF FRENCH ARMY LOST

1,500,000 killed in battle and an equal number seriously wounded is the enormous sacrifice of France in the world war. This constituted about half of the men she put into the field—a larger ratio of her 36,000,000 population than any other nation gave. America owes France a large debt of gratitude for this heroic outpouring of her life's blood that liberty might live, and also to the peasants of France who discovered a perfect remedy for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments which is reported to have relieved incalculable suffering, prevented many surgical operations and saved thousands of lives. Geo. H. Mayr, a leading Chicago chemist, imports the ingredients and sells this remedy in America under the name of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. A. A. Clarke and druggists every.—Adv.

Airplane Flares.

The announcement was recently made by Maj. Gen. C. C. Williams, chief of ordnance, of the perfection and the adoption by the army for use in France of an airplane flare for night bombing. According to Major General Williams, the flare is released from a bombing plane by pulling a lever. As it drops the resistance offered by the air sets the fuse mechanism in operation. The result is the emission of a powerful light of from 300,000 to 400,000 candle power, which completely illuminates the terrain below. The amount of light given is equivalent to that of a battery of from 150 to 175 street arc lamps or from 15,000 to 17,500 ordinary incandescent lamp bulbs such as are used in the home. As soon as the flare gets into operation a huge parachute, made of the best quality silk, opens and holds the brilliant light in suspension in the air for a sufficient time to allow the aviator to select his objective or target. The bombs then follow.

Shrewd Guess.

"For half an hour Gadspur has been standing at the telephone saying, 'Uh, huh; uh huh!'"

"Who do you suppose is at the other end of the wire?"

"It must be his wife. He would feel in duty bound to be more polite to anybody else."

IF YOUR EARS RING WITH HEAD NOISES.

If you have roaring, buzzing noises in your ears, are getting hard of hearing and fear Catarrhal Deafness, go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double-strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucuous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has catarrhal trouble of the ears, is hard of hearing or has head noises should give this prescription a trial.

WOMEN POLICE "MAKE GOOD"

Abundant Testimony as to Splendid Work They Have Done in England Since War Started.

How England's women police have developed into a real force for the maintenance of order and public morality has appeared in the report of Miss Goldingham, deputy commandant of the women police service, at a meeting in Richmond, where the establishment of such a force was under discussion.

She said that these forces had been formed from voluntary workers early in the war, as a means of helping refugees and young English girls and boys who were in need of aid or advice. In three and a half years 1,000 women have been trained for the work and have found appointments.

At present women are policing 20 munition factories, where they perform all the duties, practically, that could be expected of masculine police. The women's police service has also supplied police for 18 towns, in four of which women have been sworn in as constables.

Great Healer for Sores, Cuts, Scalds, Burns and Bruises

Great Antiseptic Ointment Called San Cura that Laughrey Drug Co., Connellsville; Broadway Drug Co., Scottdale, sells on Money Back Plan.

"Arm badly scalded with steam," writes Gilbert Hard of Rimard's Mills, Ohio; "San Cura Ointment relieved the pain at once and arm healed rapidly. It is a wonderful ointment."

Here's another: Ellis W. Frankenstein, Titusville, Pa., broke his leg, was in bed six months; discharged from hospital as incurable; was five years on crutches, while opening in leg continued to discharge pus, suffered terrible pains; San Cura Ointment drew out poisonous pus and many pieces of bone; now perfectly healthy; sore healed, and weight increased from 86 to 121 pounds.

San Cura Ointment is such a marvelous healing antiseptic ointment that it is sold on money-back plan.

It relieves itching skin, tetter, eczema, salt rheum, old running and fever sores, ulcers, boils, carbuncles, sore nipples, piles, frosted feet, chilblains, catarrh and chapped skin. Only 30 and 50 cents a jar.

Be sure and always use SAN CURA SOAP for all skin disease and to give you a fine complexion. It's a splendid baby soap; prevents infantile diseases. 25 cents.—Adv.

Hun Captives Are Oxlike.

Once through Templeaux and on the main road for Peronne things became less exciting and we drew up to see a column of 900 prisoners pass us. Each side of the causeway was lined by Australians, with their keen, clear-cut, falcon faces, and between lurched these heavy-jawed, beetle-browed, uncouth louts, now caught and staring round with bewildered eyes at their debonnaire captors. I saw none of that relief at getting out of it which I have read of; nor did I see any signs of fear, but the prevailing impression was an oxlike stolidity and dullness. It was a herd of beasts, not a procession of men. It was indeed farcical to think that these uniformed bumpkins represented the great military nation, while the gallant figures who lined the road belonged to the race which they had despised as being unwarlike. Time and Fate between them have a pretty sense of humor.

What Next?

Recently, after the routine of physical examinations and tests at the Indianapolis Orphans' home had been given, consisting of the typhoid and smallpox vaccinations, eye and ear tests and treatment recommended, search for and removal of adenoids and tonsils, dental tests and care, diphtheria immunity test and antitoxin and finally tuberculosis test, some of these requiring repeated trials and treatment, one little fellow said to his teacher in the school, in speaking of the various overhaulings: "They'll be testing us next to see if we have any brains, won't they?"

New Source of Leather.

Durable leather from the bladders of animals is claimed by Rudolph Obrist-Doos, a Swiss. The bladders are stretched and dried, giving them a smooth surface, and are then made pliant and waterproof by a special process of fulling and tanning. The pieces so obtained may be pressed together, with a suitable adhesive, and with or without felt, to give a leather or leather substitute of any desired thickness.

Move Czar's Body Again.

A new chapter to the travels of the dead has been added by the exhumation and reinterment of the body of the former Emperor Nicholas. Napoleon's remains lay for nearly twenty years in St. Helena before removal to the Invalides. The body of Rameses the Great lies in Cairo, his heart in Paris. Christopher Columbus, dead, has traveled almost as far as the great voyager traveled when living.

At the Theatres

THE SOISSON.

"EYE FOR EYE."—In which Nazimova is seen in the fiery role of Hassouna, a young and beautiful Arab girl, is again the feature at the Soisson theatre today. One of the many unusual features which this picture contains is the real circus. All the phases of circus life will be seen—not only that of the ring where the performers are at work, but that also of their private life and in the traveling wagons in which they move from town to town. All the acts which will appear on the screen are known to circus goers of America and were engaged to perform in their regular manner for the benefit of the camera. A large tent was pitched and then the ring master opened his performance with the usual grand entrance parade and blaring brass band. There were the clowns, the lions, elephants, camels, tigers, bareback riders and tightrope walkers. Then came the fat woman, the living skeleton, the two-headed man and all the freaks with which circus goers are familiar. The crowning act, however, was the Dance of the Veils by Hassouna.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"THE MAN WHO WOULDN'T TELL."—Many of the beautiful and historic places along the coast of Southern California are shown in "The Man Who Wouldn't Tell," the Vitagraph Blue Ribbon features which is the attraction at the Paramount theatre today. Earle Williams, who is the featural player, is a native of California, and knows the state like a book, and he and James Young, the director, knew just where to go, with the result that the picture is a masterpiece from a photographic standpoint. One scene of exquisite beauty shows the Country Club and grounds at Del Monte. The society folks there, when they learned Vitagraph was to locate there a week, were out in force to help along the director, and, incidentally, to display before the camera their lovely gowns. There is a spirited polo game on the Del Monte links between society teams, in which Mr. Williams is shown as one of the captains, and his thousands of screen admirers will note he is as finished a polo player as he is actor. "The Man Who Wouldn't Tell" presents Mr. Williams in his favorite role, that of a detective. Only he is a British secret service agent here in the United States uncovering German plots. Tomorrow's picture is "The Nature Girl," with Violet Mersereau in the feature role.

SCOTTDALE THEATRE.

"THE GIRL HE LEFT BEHIND."—Ralph Thomas Kettering is the author of "The Girl He Left Behind," of special interest to this community, owing to the fact that it is to be presented at the Scottdale theatre tonight. "Tell us, Mr. Kettering," said a reviewer, "why your plays all seem to be successes." "Well," said Kettering, "maybe it's because my plays are clean." And there is an interesting truth. The day of the salacious, suggestive play is over. True, those kind of plays attract morbid boys and girls just reaching the stages of puberty, but they do more harm than good. "My stories are those of the people," said Mr. Kettering. "For instance, in 'The Girl He Left Behind' I tell a story of two families—one from the south, the other from the north. Old Colonel Farnum comes to this little town after the Civil War and settles. Likewise does old Grandpa Allison. Both raise families. Farnum has a granddaughter, Betty. Allison has two grandsons, Billy and Frank. The brothers love Betty and she isn't sure which one of the two she loves. When the great war breaks out, Billy enlists and goes to Texas to join the aviation corps. Frank remains at home to take care of his mother. There follows an interesting story.

The operation was for infection of the bone of the ankle in which Corporal Easton was wounded in action.

CORPORAL BAILEY TELLS OF EVENTS SINCE ENLISTMENT

All Taking Part in Battles May Be Thankful to God They're Alive to Tell of It, His View.

Incidents since he left Camp Merritt bound for overseas, including the battles in which he took part, are related by Corporal Henry F. Bailey, Company B, 5th Engineers, in a letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey, Morrell avenue, Connellsville. The letter is dated Thiacourt, France, December 1. In part it follows:

"The censorship has been lifted on some things and I am now going to tell you about them. After sending you a telegram from Camp Merritt not to come and see me, for it meant you would not find me there, we left for the boat, hiking to the Hudson river where we boarded a steamer for Hoboken.

"The same day we boarded the steamship Henry Mallory, stayed in port two days and on the third day said good-bye to the Statue of Liberty. We were at sea for 12 days. On three days we ran into German submarines. However, they did not do any harm for our guners were too quick for them.

"On the 12th day we saw land and there never was a grander sight. After 12 days on a storm tossed sea with subs, etc., I could not help but feel grateful at the sight of land. We landed in Brest, spent a week in a rest camp and then had our first introduction to French railroads. Before leaving Brest, President Poincare inspected our regiment.

"Our trip took us on a two days ride through Versailles, Paris and finally landed us at Ajoy. Here we drilled for six weeks. Also tried hard to learn a little French. From this place we rode one night and one day, stopping in Chalizny. We then hiked through Toul to Monorville. This was where the Americans started their drive and where the Marines were camped before the drive started. Stopping here a little over a week we proceeded closer to the front and on October 8 we had our first casualties; also our first night on the front and one long to be remembered.

"From this date until November 10 we worked on the Toul front, working by the day and camping in captured German dugouts at night.

"Our greatest test came in the drive on Hill 323. All that survived this war can be thankful to God for being alive to tell about it. When shell and shrapnel were flying, shell holes at every step, it was a greater power than human nature that directed each hit.

"On my trip to the gas school, I visited many places of interest including Paris. Today having nothing else to do, I went to the commissary at Noviant, crossing what was at one time the Hindenburg line."

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens so Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.—Adv.
